SCOPE: This seminar examines subjects emerging as critically important in the professional world of today. Claims of malpractice and ethical violations. From architects to politicians, professionals are under scrutiny, criticized and sued for what the public sees as perceived breaches of ethics standards and unsound professional decisions.

The instructors will examine the nature of these concerns and the steps which all professionals should consider taking to avoid and, if need be, defend against such claims. The format for the day is a dialectic between the instructors, with participation from those attending.
